

THE NEW SCHOOL FOR ANALYTICAL PSYCHOLOGY

The New School for Analytical Psychology invites you to attend our Inaugural Public Event:

Shame, Truth and the Torments of Time

Presented by Ladson Hinton, M.D.

with respondents Robin McCoy Brooks, Sharon R. Green & Kenneth Kimmel

January 24, 2015

Swedish Cultural Center

9:00 am - 1:00 pm

Following this program is our four-month Seminar Series
Neglected Perspectives in Psychoanalysis

Temporality is unique to the human creature. Time drives and torments us, and because of that we create cultures, religions, arts, and sciences. While hungering for an expansive future, we fear the dangers that new horizons may bring. The past often haunts us. Like Hamlet, we fear the emergence of old ghosts in our present and future. Consciousness of time is an ever-present force thrusting us beyond the boundaries of the known and familiar. Shame is particularly connected with time because it is the emotion of boundaries, often emerging when we enter new territory. It is frequently a marker of terrible past events, both personal and collective. Leaving old structures often exposes us to raw, unexpected truths, captured by a gaze that evokes deep shame. To evade the shock of truth and the resultant shame, individuals and cultures often remain defensively frozen in time.

On the other hand, truth and shame can also violently stop us and make us listen, thereby creating openings for new, unexpected vistas of possibility. Such a primal openness can be an aid in navigating the unknown future and assimilating the traumatic past, and be a kind of compass in the ethical darkness. This perspective lies at the core of the psychoanalytic ethos.

I will reflect upon these ideas, using examples from myth and ritual, cinema, cultural history, and clinical practice.

Continuing Education

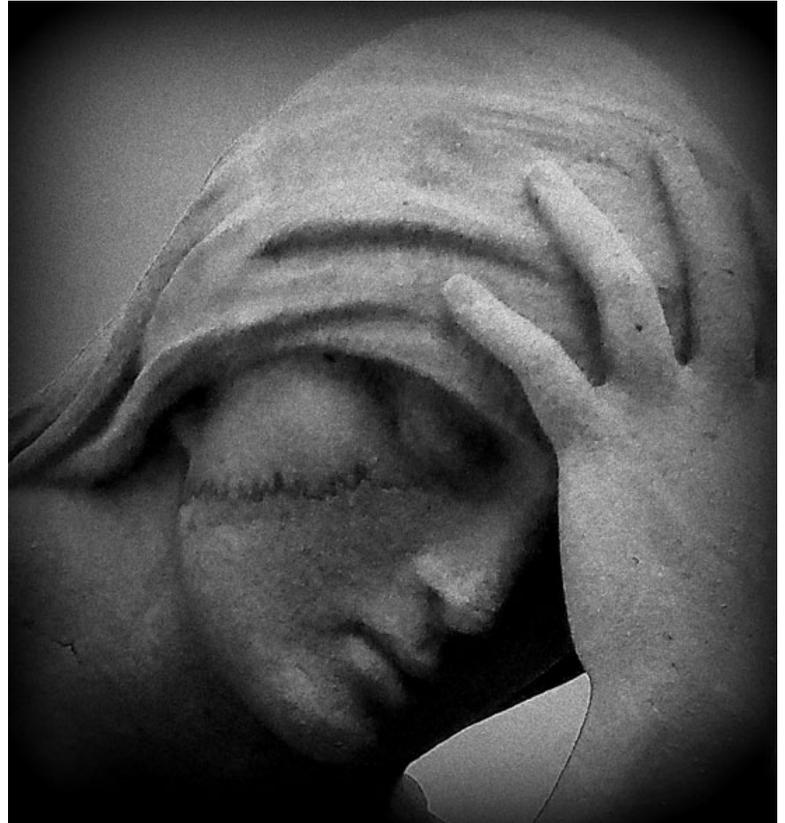

CEU hours provided for Licensed Counselors, Marriage & Family Therapists, and Social Workers

13.5 CEU hrs. for both programs

10 CEU hrs. for Neglected Perspectives in Psychoanalysis

3.5 CEU hrs. for Shame, Truth and the Torments of Time

6 hours of Ethics are included

*"Niobe Grieving", Oakland Cemetary, Atlanta, Georgia
© 2012 Stephanie Lincecum*

Registration & Fees

Shame, Truth & the Torments of Time w/ Neglected Perspectives in Psychoanalysis Series: $150.00

Neglected Perspectives Seminar Series Only: $120. (These seminars are meant to be attended as a complete series.)

Space for the Neglected Perspectives in Psychoanalysis Series is limited to 10 persons, so early registration is encouraged.

Shame, Truth and the Torments of Time Only:

$45.00 Pre-registration

$50.00 at the door

$25.00 Student/Candidate

THE NEW SCHOOL FOR ANALYTICAL PSYCHOLOGY

The New School for Analytical Psychology invites you to attend our four month seminar series

Neglected Perspectives in Psychoanalysis

In these intimate Saturday morning seminars, each of our analysts will give voice to the ideas they find passionately and ethically engaging. Each seminar will involve short presentations or lectures, some with PowerPoint and use of cinema or other media. The presentations will be followed by group discussion focusing on the challenging questions that we as clinicians must face in these times. The New School faculty will be in attendance at each of the seminars

Shatter, Emptiness and Faith - Kabbalistic Strands in Psychoanalysis & Philosophy

February 28, 2015.

Clinical Perspectives of the Intergenerational Transmission of 'Real' World Trauma.

March 28, 2015

Ghosts, Monsters, Singularities and Other Non-Sense

April 25, 2015

Explorations in Shame & Temporality

May 30, 2015

"Look away" at Hans Holbein's painting of "The Ambassadors," 1533, and you may see that the blot on the floor is a skull gazing back at you. The viewer must be willing to search out this unexpected and neglected perspective revealed beneath our commonplace assumptions . . .

Prior to this seminar series is our inaugural public event
Shame, Truth and the Torments of Time

When and Where

The meeting time will be from 9 am – 12:30 pm

The Location of all the seminars will be in the home of Sharon R. Green, on Capitol Hill.

Details will be sent to participants upon registration.

Continuing Education

CEU hours provided for Licensed Counselors, Marriage & Family Therapists, and Social Workers

13.5 CEU hrs. for both programs

10 CEU hrs. for Neglected Perspectives in Psychoanalysis

3.5 CEU hrs. for Shame, Truth and the Torments of Time

6 hours of Ethics are included

Registration & Fees

Shame, Truth & the Torments of Time w/ Neglected Perspectives in Psychoanalysis Series: $150.00

Neglected Perspectives Seminar Series Only: $120. (These seminars are meant to be attended as a complete series.)

Space for the Neglected Perspectives in Psychoanalysis Series is limited to 10 persons, so early registration is encouraged.

Shame, Truth and the Torments of Time Only:

$45.00 Pre-registration

$50.00 at the door

$25.00 Student/Candidate

Neglected Perspectives in Psychoanalysis Registration

First Name

Last Name

Degree & License

Mailing Address

City

State

Zip Code

E-mail

Subscribe Our Newsletter?

Yes

No

Phone

Please Choose:

$150 - Shame, Truth & the Torments of Time w/ Neglected Perspectives in Psychoanalysis Series.

$120 - Neglected Perspectives Seminar Series Only.

$45 - Shame, Truth and the Torments of Time Only

$25 - Student/Candidate Shame, Truth and the Torments of Time Only

$50 at the door

Amount Enclosed:

Please Make Checks Payable to: New School for Analytical Psychology

Comments

Mail Check & This Form To:
New School for Analytical Psychology
505 Broadway E, #469
Seattle, WA 98102

For further information please email info@nsanpsy.com or call toll free: (855) 760-8886