

press release
press release
press release
press release
press release
press release
press release

The SPCK Introduction to Nietzsche: His religious thought (London: SPCK)

Also published as

An Introduction to Nietzsche
(Massachusetts: Hendrickson)

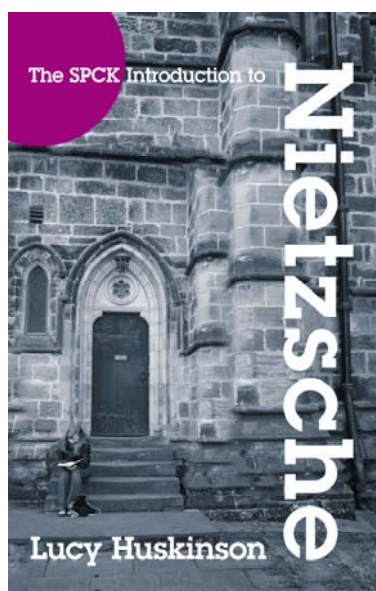

Lucy Huskinson

Nietzsche's crucial teaching revealed!

Nietzsche is a key figure of modern and postmodern Western thought – famous for his slogan 'God is dead' – yet he is often dismissed as a controversial figure in Christian circles.

But was he only an atheist with eccentric and incredulous ideas? Lucy Huskinson rescues Nietzsche's religious project from the murky misunderstandings that surround his work. His work is undeniably complex and difficult, but readers of this book believe that Lucy Huskinson has achieved the almost impossible task of producing an extremely lucid and accessible introduction to his thought. It is the first to deal explicitly with Nietzsche's affirmative religious perspective, and reveals important lessons for Christians that are extremely relevant today.

'Finally, an introduction to Nietzsche from a Christian perspective that presents the reader with a thoughtful, charitable and reliable interpretation! . . . an excellent entrée'

Professor Bruce Ellis Benson, Wheaton College, Illinois

Lucy Huskinson

is Lecturer in the School of Theology and Religious Studies at Bangor University, UK. She is the author of Nietzsche and Jung: The Whole Self in the Union of Opposites (Routledge, 2004).

Title Information (SPCK)

- £12.99
- ISBN: 978 0 281 06042 9
- paper
- 216 x 138 mm
- 128 pp
- 17 September 2009

Title Information (Hendrickson)

- $14.95
- ISBN: 978-1598564709
- paper
- 216 x 138 mm
- 128 pp
- 31 December 2009

'This crisp and clear account is an ideal introduction'

Professor Paul Bishop,
University of Glasgow

'Her introduction is without doubt an excellent entrée to Nietzsche.'

Professor Bruce Ellis Benson,
Wheaton College, Illinois

'To produce a brief introduction to Nietzsche's thought, given its breadth, depth and complexity, is an almost impossible task. Lucy Huskinson has managed it intelligently and with tact.'

Professor Graham Parkes
University College Cork

For further information please contact Anna Kingham on 020 7592 3959 or akingham@spck.org.uk