

Website Launch – PAMII

(www.pamii.org)

January | 2015

Prof. Luke Hockley (University of Bedfordshire) and A/Prof Terrie Waddell (La Trobe University) have recently formed an international research group, 'Psychology and the Moving Image International' (PAMII). As we begin to explore the possibilities of grant collaboration and project partnerships, the group is pleased to launch its website (<http://pamii.org>). While the site will develop further over time, we look forward to the wider academic, higher degree research, and the psychology based community contributing discussions and research possibilities via the site's online forum.

Our international members, based in the UK, USA and Australia, are largely monograph published authors (academics and analysts) aiming to develop a shared analytic and academic interest in the analysis of, and engagement with, the moving image - from the large to small screen. The aims of the group include joint research projects, seminars, mini conferences, grants, and publications. Industry links that bring the lived experience of screen practitioners and psychological theory together is another ambitious goal. We are also interested in nurturing the growth of the discipline by inviting our more promising higher degree research students to participate further down the track.

Details about how to join PAMII can be found on the website.

Members:

Associate Professor Terrie Waddell (La Trobe University)

Professor Luke Hockley (University of Bedfordshire)

Dr. John Beebe (Analyst in private practice, San Francisco)

Dr. Judith Cooper (Clinical psychologist, Chicago)

Ms. Nadi Fadina (Senior Partner in film investment company Global Media Capital)

Professor Susan Rowland (Pacifica Graduate Institute, USA)

Dr. Christopher Hauke (Goldsmiths, University of London)

Dr. Helena Bassil-Morozow (University of Bedfordshire and Goldsmiths University of London)

Dr. Lucy Huskinson (Bangor University)

Professor John Izod (University of Stirling)

Dr. Catriona Miller (Glasgow Caledonian University)

Dr. Greg Singh (University of Stirling)

Dr. Glen Slater (Pacifica Graduate Institute)

Dr. Mark Nicholls (The University of Melbourne)

Dr. Steven Conway (Swinburne University, Melbourne)