

BASIC JUNGIAN CONCEPTS

Course Description

This is a series of face-to-face seminars suitable for all those with an interest in C.G. Jung's psychology. The aim of the course is to give students an introduction to analytical psychology's key concepts and to explore areas onto which Jung applied his theories.

We will concentrate on Jung's model of the psyche, with special attention paid to the definitive concepts differentiating analytical psychology from psychoanalysis: the collective unconscious, archetypes, complexes, psychological types, individuation, the Self and synchronicity. We will also explore Jung's evaluation of, and writings related to, the arts, religion and society.

Most seminars will concentrate on one or two major primary texts, which will be presented and examined in detail.
